Sugaring is in the air.

Millford, N. H., settles. Where's Harwick?

Perhaps after all we shall not have to wait for an airship to get across the state.

At last reports we had not been hurled into war with Mexico or with any part of Mexico.

The list of creditors of Robert E.
Davie, the "boy broker" of Boston, reads almost like the city directory.

If Mr. Mellen should kick over the traces and build a new Boston & Maine passenger station in Barre—yes, if.

The Boston Transcript is in error in stating that the Vermont legislature accepted the federal income tax amendment. Both branches of the legislature voted against it.

Be it hereby known that the town of Somerset, Windham county, voted two in favor and three against the licensing of the sale of liquor. This is the town which was missing from The Times' list. We are sorry to note such a decline in total vote cast, last year there having been a total of eight to this year's five. However, those five voters have equal power in the legislature with the nearly two thousand in Barre, under the present system.

The continued efforts of the citizens of Brattleboro, a majority of the citizens, at least, to get the main line of the Boston & Maine railroad to run through their village following the failure of their scheme before the Vermont legislature are creditable; and if it is possible to work out the details of the new plan announced yesterday they should be given all encouragement. The plan seems feasible and is undoubtedly as cheap as it would be for the railroad to enter Brattleboro after making a detour across the Connecticut river into New Hampshire as now proposed by the officials of the system. The two bridges required in the crossing and recrossing of the river would prove to be a very large item of expense, an item which would be eliminated if the track should be built all the way on Vermont soil.

BURLINGTON'S STATION REQUIRE-MENTS.

With promises of two fine new passenger stations, one from the Central Vermont and the other from the Boston & Maine system, Burlington stands in a position to be embarrassed by riches.
But it would be rather foolish to have two passenger stations there. In the first place, the two lines come together at a point which is most advantageous for a union structure, and, in the second place, the business of a city no larger than Burlington is not sufficient to demand two structures in the same locality. Besides, it would be a great inconvenience to the patrons of the two railroad systems. Therefore, it is the natural course for the warring railroad systems to get their heads together on this single detail of development, if for nothing else. The Burlington "committee of fifteen," which has the railroad feature of municipal life in charge, ought to exert its influence to encourage concerted action and thus avoid what would prove to be a bad error in solving transportation problems. If Burlington citizens demanded a union station three months ago, they most certainly ought to demand it now, when they are over-March 11th, 1794 (just 116 years ago today) an act of Congress authorized the formation of the United States Navy. The nucleus of this Navy consisted of "a few old tubs," but they did their work.

Here are navy blue serges that will do their duty as faithfully as the "old tubs," also some "odd but interesting" patterns for young men's

"UNNECESSARY DELAY."

The handling of the law supplements this year was all in favor of the daily papers of the state and against the weeklies. Two weeks ago the supplements began to appear in the dailies, while some of the weeklies have not yet been supplied with their quota. The printing commissioner explains at length that the supplements were being turned out as fast as presses, working 24 hours a day, could furnish. There are presses and presses, and nobody is more familiar with the capacity of presses than the printing commissioner.

There are presses in the state which could have turned off the supplements in one or two of the 24-hour days that the commissioner lays so much stress on, and the completed supplements could have been furnished to dailies and weeklies alike for simultaneous publication.
This is the way it should have been and the commissioner is weak in at-tributing the delay to physical causes.
No doubt arrangements could easily have been made with one of the daily papers of the state to put the supplements on a perfecting press and get them off while the flat bed presses, which were used, were turning off a few thousands.

This would have diverted some of the work and some of the profit from the particular printing office which undoubtedly has the inside track under the present administration, but it would have made for better general satisfaction.
There should be a time limit on the printing of the supplements, and the time should be computed on the basis of press work done on a fast perfecting press.—Burlington Clipper.

This is not quite fair to Mr. Parsons, the present printing commissioner. The contract for printing this year's law supplements was awarded and made by his predecessor in office to the printers who have been doing the work. Mr.
Parsons is in no way to blame for this.
A great part of the delay is due, however, to the fact that certain provisions and conditions of that contract have not been followed. On the matter of distribution, The Times believes the weeklies should have had the supplements the same week as the daily papers, but there probably was some good reason why this order of distribution was not followed.

SCHOOLMASTER'S BANQUET

Was Held Last Evening at Burlington With 40 Participants.

Burlington, March 11.—The annual banquet of the Vermont Schoolmasters' club was held at the Van Ness house last evening, attended by about 40. The toastmaster was E. L. Ingalls of Harford, president of the club. Music was furnished by the university double quartette and the principal after-dinner speaker was Prof. T. N. Carver of Harvard university, whose subject was "Some Opportunities for National Greatness."

At the close of the address by Prof.
Carver, the final report of the committee appointed to prepare a list of studies for high and secondary schools was made.

Wheaton & Parker at Montpelier granite from the Wheaton quarries for 15 cents per cubic foot. Hewitt was lessee of the quarries and Wheaton & Parker were Orren Wheaton, father of Pliny C. Wheaton, and John Parker, grandfather of Earl Parker of this city. The granite was used for steps and posts on the State House grounds at Montpelier.
